No two cases are alike. No two courts are alike. Andrew Campbell-Tiech KC's experience of the most demanding cases before the most demanding tribunals is a resource in itself and of real advantage to those he represents.

Expertise

Murder & Manslaughter

Andrew has defended in more than 50 murder trials. He has particular expertise in the areas of insanity and diminished responsibility and is consequently no admirer of the M'Naghton rules. He has similar expertise and reservations about overreach in joint enterprise cases, notwithstanding Jogee.

Notable Murder & Manslaughter cases

K: M'Naghton

Precluding defence of insanity for severely mentally ill patient who bore no responsibility for his acts.

S-M

Matricide by ex-psychiatric patient: diminished responsibility

C

Matricide & epilepsy: insanity

A & 5 Ors

Joint enterprise single knife wound

M & 6 Ors

Joint enterprise two knife wounds

L & 4 Ors

Joint enterprise one gunshot

Proceeds of Crime: Confiscation

Andrew has practised in this area for over twenty years and has appeared at first instance and at appellate level in many reported cases. He has written extensively about the excesses of the POCA scheme, notably as part of the editorial board of Criminal Law Week.

Money Laundering

As a barrister who has specialised in money laundering for many years, Andrew is regarded as a leading practitioner in this field.

He is the general editor of Butterworth's Money Laundering Law.

He advises financial institutions and others, both as to compliance generally and particularly as to the reach of the Money Laundering Regulations

Fraud

Andrew has defended in complex high-value fraud cases including banking, tax, insurance, construction and insolvency. Often coupled with allegations of money laundering and/or offences under the Bribery Act, Andrew's breadth of experience and skill-set allows him to contextualise – and thereby humanise – the bald figures that underpin every fraud trial.

Professional Discipline

For over a decade, Andrew has represented practitioners before UKCP, BACP, HCPC, GMC, RCVS, SRA, BTAS and others.

It is this experience that has led him to contribute, together with Julie Norris of Kingsley Napley LLP, a chapter entitled 'Reform' in the 'Psychotherapist & the Professional Complaint: the Shadow Side of Psychotherapy' (Karnac 2022).

As an informed and passionate advocate, he believes that reform of this entire area of law is long overdue.
